Acute Fatigue and Management in everyday practice

This is a pilot study to establish the likely inclusion criteria of those experiencing fatigue, with a long term view to develop a website for help support and manage those with acute fatigue in primary care. It is also hoped it will help to gain a better understanding of the key issues in achieving recovery from acute fatigue.

If you have suffered with acute fatigue (less than 3months duration) then you may be eligible for this study. Please ask your GP for further information
